

GlobalFone's Satellite Communications

Special Report

July 2008 Call us! 800-826-6152

What exactly is 'Good Enough' for you?

How you measure successful connections will determine your satellite phone.

The technologically interwoven nature of our world has us feeling secure that lights will go on, air conditioners will cool us, traffic lights will stay lit and we'll be able to make phone calls whenever we want. A disaster, however large or small can disrupt these personal securities in an instant.

Those who have lived through any kind of service interruption know how frustrating it can be: No power, no lights, no phones—now what do you do? How do you continue doing what you need to do, be it running your business, supporting your agency or keeping your family safe. Communications is THE critical cornerstone to any recovery effort, and when it comes to communications, you need to determine for yourself, "What is good enough?"

Will sparse or overtaxed cellular service (that may be unreliable normally) be good enough? Is a satellite phone with temporary coverage issues good enough? (It just may be; call us!) Is a 98% reliable solution good enough?

Is this good enough? Use Globalstar phones to leave a 'voice billboard' (at a daycare, Head-Start center, or a school) with updates or special instructions. You can buy portable Globalstar phones for just $350 (call us for details), so you may not need to spend thousands of dollars for your good enough solution. For many situations, just knowing that people can call and hear your update will be good enough. If you are a first responder or support first responders, you may decide that you need more functionality and that's okay; there are different solutions for you. But if you want people to call you (as they are able) and hear your updates, Globalstar is a terrific option.

In situations where making phone calls may not be paramount but leaving timely updates for others may be critically important. Globalstar is a nice, inexpensive solution for you. So consider what good enough means to you and as always please call us if you have any questions. 800-826-6152.

Announcing GlobalFone's Blog website!

Need to keep up to speed with all that is happening in Satcom?

Visit our newest website - www.satellitephonesinfo.com

Everybody would agree that the satellite industry is a pretty dynamic place. From new products and services to constellation updates to special items of interest, the speed at which change occurs means communications professionals like you really need to keep up and be on your toes with the ever-moving landscape. But how do you keep up to speed with everything that is going on in this rapidly-changing industry?

Simple! Visit www.satellitephonesinfo.com and read our blog about the latest developments.

GlobalFone is objective provider of satellite industry information and solutions so we'll write about everything that we feel is important for you to know that will help you make intelligent, strategically-oriented decisions about your satellite phone solutions.

Please go to www.satellitephonesinfo.com where you will find updated commentary on a wide range of topics; past copies of this newsletter, Iridium satellite phones, the latest BGAN and INMARSAT updates, Globalstar constellation updates, new devices, innovative rate plans and unique solutions. You'll find a variety of categories at www.satellitephonesinfo.com that will inform and educate you with timely news and information that you can use now to improve your satellite phone program today.

We've developed this site for you and aim to post information that will help you, so please call on us 800-826-6152 or e-mail and let us know how we can be of service to you.

"Our phone in Taji Iraq just broke. Can you get a replacement out to him quickly?"

Your phone is the only reliable voice communication from that location."

Upon shipment:

"Thanks! Unbelievable Customer Service!"

*Steve D,
Defense client*

"I also want to express, my deepest appreciation, for your outstanding service, support and communication."

Your understanding throughout this very rare and complex process is invaluable."

*Rick R.,
Fortune 100 consumer products client.*

RAVE REVIEWS