

'Test Your Satellite Phone Week'

This is the time to ensure your emergency communications work properly and people know how to use them. Test your phones today!

Last month we told you about 'Test Your Satellite Phone Week', which started this past Sunday, May 25. Since our announcement we've seen many other providers advocate testing satellite phones during this crucial time, evidence that the industry supports this broad initiative.

Seen the recent news? Tornadoes, earthquakes, floods, power outages. Disasters strike any time and satellite phones have repeatedly proven themselves as THE best source of communications during and after a disaster, when all other communications are inoperable or destroyed.

Now is the time to ensure your phones are working, not when disaster strikes and you pull the phones off the shelf only to discover the batteries are dead and there are no instructions. Your participation in 'Test Your Satellite Phone Week' will help you avoid that challenging scenario.

So no matter what kind of satellite phones you have, please...take some time to be sure your phones are working and your people know how to use them. If you need help, call us.

At GlobaFone we advocate monthly satellite phone testing and training to ensure that everyone knows how to use the phones if needed. The # 1 issue after disasters is people not knowing how to use their satellite phones. That can cripple your emergency operations and put lives at risk.

So be sure to participate in 'Test Your Satellite Phone Week' so you know how to use one of your most important emergency tools. For a free copy of our EasyGuide® user card for Iridium or Globalstar satellite phones please call or e-mail us.

We are here at your service so please call us if you have any questions. 800-826-6152.
